Purpose: To enable leaders to learn effective people skills and gain knowledge on how to upskill and be authentic people-centric leaders.

Context: Post-pandemic challenges of remote and hybrid work, and demands made by the competitive global marketplace, plus the need to comply with quality standards, sustainability, and climate change issues, have created great challenges for leaders in organisations.

Sometimes it can be extremely stressful for leaders to cope with it all, in these turbulent times.

How can leaders address these challenges? What skills do they need to learn?

It is urgent that leaders need to be taught specific people skills so that they can learn how to meet their own personal challenges, be resilient and at the same time help people develop their full potential so that they can be competent and happy at work.

These are important questions that need to be addressed:

- As a leader, how should you lead?
- In what way can you make your people feel valued?
- In what way can you enable your people to develop their full potential?
- In what way can you support your team and help your organisation thrive?
- In what way can you adopt a people-centric leadership style?

This 2-day masterclass will cover all this and more!
